V. A. Chilikin, closed his newspaper* in Shanghai because there were so few Russian subscribers. After the evacuation of white Russians to the Philippines and of Russian Jews to Israel, as well as other departures, only about four thousand Russians remained in Shanghai**, an insufficient number to warrant continuing publication of the paper.

2. V. A. Chilikin was offered the editorship of a large Russian newspaper in Harbin. This newspaper, the largest in Manchuria, is distributed throughout the country and has correspondents throughout Manchuria.
